Discussion

Thorkil raises the concern that there is lacking a course on sustainability in the GDS advanced study courses, Sevasti stated that there are courses on IPG which would also be offered to GDS. Thorkil where then satisfied with how sustainability where represented in the collected course offer.

There are concerns regarding the constellation between the courses on GDS, as an example that there are to very similar courses on the same semester. The board agreed on that concern.

Sevasti stated that she was not aware of the plan for the electives for GDS, and therefore it was hard to coordinate the content on courses between the programs.

Line - we are still lacking criteria, and one criterion could be a disciplinary criterion. And that the electives could be divided in academic pillars. There could also be a criterion that favor courses that include PhD or Postdoc.

Line suggests that we should initiative a process where the board defines the criteria for approving elective courses in the board.

Klaas is concerned about ensuring progression and coherence. And when we offer electives across programs, there is the possibility for a lacking in progression due to the students' prerequisites.

Sevasti states that the purpose of the electives is to provide the possibility to specialize within the student's degree, so they should build on some of the mandatory courses. On IPG it is important that the program provides offers that build on the foundation on the courses.

Lone raises that the board role is to ensure the quality of the combination on the courses. And that criterias for approving the courses could be relevant.

There is a general discussion regarding the number of courses offered, they board had previous made decisions regarding this issue, and there was not taken any new decision.

Sevasti raises that it would be more rational and logical to provide only 2 GDS courses and 1 IPG elective advanced study course pr. semester,

Regarding the method course, Olivier raised the question regarding the number of method courses, and Sevasti wants to have a pluralism of courses, and therefore to have both qualitative and quantitative method courses offered.

Decision

The board decided that the electives from GDS should be adapted so we ensure that the electives have an academic diversity. Thorkil is responsible to get the information to Somdeep.

Somdeep and Sevasti will get responsible to coordinate the advanced study courses and discuss the coherence between the method courses. The board would approve only three method courses in total from GDS and IPG pr. semester.
